Re: Jim Weller
Weller Construction
Columbia, CA

To Whom it may concern:

We are giving an enthusiastic thumbs up to Mr. Jim Weller, who constructed the bare radiation treatment vault for our clinic, as well as acted as a construction consultant during the remainder of the construction.

Through building radiation oncology clinics and vaults (more than 150), Mr. Weller has accumulated a vast wealth of knowledge that helped us throughout the planning and construction processes. Due to their experience, the Weller construction crew was able to direct the sub-contractors to make sure they installed all the correct infrastructure, and additional conduits for future expansion and unforeseen circumstances. As is pretty obvious, a mistake in forgetting a crucial infrastructure piece would be quite cost prohibitive having to go through 3+ feet of concrete. The Weller crew has perfected the techniques and knowledge to build a vault in record time, and at a competitive price.

Mr. Weller's knowledge goes beyond the vault section of a facility. He is intimately familiar with just about every piece of equipment and functionality of the clinic, and that is where we feel we got a good value out of hiring him as a construction consultant in addition to the vault construction. We were able to ask questions about cabinetry, patient flow, simulation rooms, etc., and he always had an answer for us that helped out with our conversations with other suppliers and contractors. Mr. Weller did site visits when requested, and was available via telephone to answer questions that arose during construction and the integration of the many technologies that go into a radiation oncology facility. We also felt that the local contractor that was hired to built the rest of the facility probably performed better as a result of Mr. Weller's role, as they knew that they would be evaluated by Jim when he would do a site visit.

We feel that hiring Weller construction was a good decision, and would recommend them to anyone contemplating building or remodeling a radiation oncology facility.
